Great activity is reported in mining affairs along the Colorado river, where Stephen Dorsey and associates, of Deuver, are investing heavily. They have already purchased mines to the value of over half a million.

We learn from the Nogales Oasis that General Frank Wheaton, U. S. A., commanding the department of the Colorado, has gone to Hermosilla, Mexico, to confer with General Louis Torres, commander of the first military zone of Mexico, upon matters relating to the subjugation of the renegade Indians who infest the border.

The Minas Prietas correspondent of the Oasis says: The happtest man in the camp is Joe Thompson. On Monday The Oasis man found him counting up his money, hats and boxes of eigersall won on McKinley. He has enough hats to last until the next election, enough eigars to keep him smoking a year, and enough "dobe" dollars to load a burro.

Tom Jones, George Wieland, E. A. Brown, Joe Thompson and others at La Colorada and Minas Prietas, have denounced some very valuable mineral properties at San Jose de Pimas, about thirty miles east of Minas Prietas. They have one ledge four feet wide with a pay streak of fine shipping ore, running high in lead, copper and silver .- Oasis.

The newspaper is the law book for the thoughtless and a library for the poor. It may stimulate the most indifferent, and may instruct the most profound. It is not the burnished words and striking attitudes of the polished orator that shape public opinion in these latter days, but it is the newspapers of the country whose words go to the public ear without parade or ceremony, that do this important work.

judge of the second judicial district to A System of Providing for the Watts Which Has Recome Popular and Suc-ceasful—Trained for Useful Lives.

> The British poor law system being unknown in Australia, where there are to work houses, it follows that there re no poor rates, such not being needd, for although it may happen that rom time to time the assistance of the state is claimed by, and granted to, the-bodied men who are unable to and employment, that assistance takes the form of wages paid for work specially provided by the state to meet a condition of the labor market which is certainly abnormal. The chief efforts of the authorities, as regard charity, are directed toward the rescue of the young from criminal companionship and temptation to crime, the support of the aged and infirm, the care of the imbecile or insane, and the subsidizing of private charity for the cure of the sick and injured, and the amelioration of want. Even where the government grants aid for philanthropic purposes, the management of the institutions supervising the expenditure is in private hands; and, in addition to state-aided institutions, there are numerous private charities, whose efforts for the relief of those whom penury, sickness or misfortune has afflicted are beyond all praise. The rescue of the young from crime is attempted in two ways-first, by means of orphanages. industrial schools and reformatories, which take care of children who have been abandoned by their natural guardians, or who are likely, from the poverty or incapacity of their parents, to be so neglected as to render them liable to lapse into crime; and secondly, by sequestering children who have already committed crime, or whose pa-
